

Yanling Wang

She is a doctor degree from Shandong University and now teaches in School of Mechanical Electrical and Information Engineering of Shandong University. Her current research areas are smart grid, power grid transmission capacity, power system operation and control.

Likai Liang

She received Ph.D. degree in School of Electrical Engineering from Shandong University in 2013. She teaches as an associate professor in School of Mechanical Electrical and Information Engineering of Shandong University. Her current research interests include power system operation and control.